Jeju Olle Trail, the Route for Walking TravelersJeju Olle Trail is a long-distance foot path on Jeju Island. The overall route, mostly following the coastline, consists of 21 connected numbered main routes, 5 sub-routes, and a short spur that connects to Jeju International Airport. The routes have an average length of 16 km and all together total 422 km. The exact length and locations change over time as trails are modified or re-routed.The routes pass through various landscapes along the way including small villages, beaches, farms, and forests. Many routes encompass some of the island's 368 oreums, which are low parasitic volcanoes and historical sites dating from ancient times through to the modern era.

Since its founding in 2007, it has become a major draw for Jeju Island, which attracts not only visitors from mainland South Korea, but also international travelers who have a taste for hiking. Jeju Olle Trail derives its name from Olle, which is the local Jeju dialect word for "a narrow pathway that is connected from the street to the front gate of a house". Gil means "road or pathway" in standard Korean:

AmorePacific opened OSULLOC Tea Museum nearby the Seokwang tea fields in Jeju in September 2001 as the first tea museum in Korea aiming to introduce and widespread Korean tea history and its tradition.

It is one of the most popular tourist attractions in Jeju visited by 1.5 million people annually. In the museum, visitors can appreciate tea cup gallery, A space for the roasted tea, and tea store. After freshly harvested from the tea field, tea leaves are roasted by a professional master whose performance is appreciated by the visitors on site, and can be purchased under reasonable prices. In this area, there is another building which is the popular Korean skincare brand, Innisfree Jeju house, sources all of its main ingredients from the island of Jeju. There are products containing volcanic clay, Jeju tangerine, lava water and green tea. Visitors also can enjoy a large area of a green tea field outside.

Dragon Head Coast and Mt.Sanbongsan

Another breathtaking volcanic feature is the Sanbongsan lava dome, a bell-shaped mountain located in the far southwest corner of the island. Sanbongsan was formed as a result of violent volcanic activity almost 800,000 years ago and is in actuality a huge body of lava. The mountain also contains a cave with a Buddhist temple, located about 150m above sea level and has spectacular views overlooking the coast.

On the nearby coastline area of the giant lava dome is the surrounding tuff ring, known as "yongmeori," or dragon head, describing the shape of the giant rock formation that is one of the island's oldest. Visitors can walk on and along Yongmeori, which stretches out into the sea from the
