Funding Source:	Bruce Tagg - NASA - SMD - ESD Airborne Science Program
Purpose of Flight:	Science
Comments:	RF01 Antarctic research flight, Thwaites area. Take off was delayed by one hour due to frost accumulation on the GV wings and tail, caused by unusually calm conditions: there was literally no wind in the morning. All instruments performed well, good data collection. No issues with the aircraft.

Mission: OIB

Mission Summary:

OIB Antarctica 2015 Sea and land Ice, Science Flight1 9/22/15

LVIS and DMS on the GV.

Target Area: Thwaites-Smith-Kohler (TSK) glaciers, with sea ice and land ice data collected en route

LVIS and DMS data collected en route to TSK area over sea ice with good coverage from ~S66.5.

Return data collection from TSK area back to Punta Arenas substantially more patchy, but data still collected.

Land ice data collected from Abbott area to TSK and back with final coverage of ~99%. In TSK region, eight grid lines surveyed, repeating and widening previous OIB data swaths. Data from glaciers on mainland Chile also recorded, including center line swath along Garibaldi glacier.

Calibration maneuvers performed during flight and prior to landing at Punta Arenas.

All instruments operated normally.

Data collected:

DMS - 13G

LVIS - 200G
